CLIPPER SHIP HORNEY, hence at San Francisco, reports a succession of calms and head winds at the way from New-York. She made the run to Cape Horn in 73 days, was 17 days off the Cape in light winds and gaises, reached the line on the Pacific side in 36 days, and was 26 days theme to San Francisco. Her greatest day's run was 315 calles. She had two boilers and two pipes on deck for the steamer Senator when she left here, and the weight of these (being 49 tuns) rendered her top heavy and unmanageable. On the 3th Aug, she experienced a heavy gale and would not lay ie; in fact, she lay like a tog on the water, and it was necessary to run her before the wind. The boilers and pipes broke adrift during the gale and injured her decks, and when it, was over Capt. Lawrence thought it prudent to get rid of them by boisting them overboard. The first officer has been ill for some time, and on her arrival the second officer was off duty and under arrest. A part of her crew and the steward were also under arrest, for, as it is reported, mutinous or disorderly conduct.

CLIPPER SHIP WILD PIGEON, hence at San Francisco, had light winds the whole passage and had three skysalis set for 75 days; for 24 days she had skysalis and royal studingsalis set, and never shifted a rope. Her greatest day's run was 360 miles on the wind.
